Radical Transparency & Leadership in a Time of Environmental Crisis
REL 3900 – 3
Open to all Yale students, for credit or as auditors

A course about environmental justice and cooperative leadership, led by Patagonia visionaries Nora Gallagher and Vincent Stanley. Texts for the course include a wide range of online resources including Pope Francis’s Laudato Si, Rose Marcario’s The End of Consumption, Don’t Buy This Jacket, and Patagonia’s Organic Cotton Decision.

Speakers:

Vincent Stanley is the co-author with Yvon Choinard of The Responsible Company and has been a key executive with Patagonia since its beginning. Patagonia’s long-time chief storyteller, he helped develop the Footprint Chronicles, the website that outlines the social and environmental impact of its products and Patagonia Books. He is a visiting fellow at the Yale School of Management and a poet whose work has appeared in Best American Poetry.

Nora Gallagher is the author of five books in the tradition of Dorothy Day and Thomas Merton: the daily living out of faith and doubt rather than abstract “belief.” In her new memoir, Moonlight Sonata at the Mayo Clinic, Nora draws on her experience as a patient and what she learned about vulnerability and resilience. Nora Gallagher serves on the YDS Dean’s Advisory Committee.

There is still space in the course. For questions, please be in touch with YDS Associate Dean of Ministerial and Social Justice Leadership Bill Goettler, william.goettler@yale.edu
